On the traces of Tonino Guerra

A guided tour to the town in which the Malatesta Dynasty was born, which, in addition to affording places that date back to the renaissance, which are worthy of note, will also enable us to admire the poetic corners created by the poet and screenwriter Tonino Guerra (The garden of forgotten fruits, the meridians, the mosaics that are dotted around the town, the sanctuary of thoughts, the house of the almond trees, the angel with a moustache) and more besides.

Many corners of the town are in fact linked to Tibet, since Padre Orazio della penna was born here, and he lived for many years in Tibet in the 18th century. The Dalai Lama came here to visit 1996 and 2005. We can call Pennabilli the small Tibet of the Valmarecchia.
